

M3 Operations Management Update

Due to recent events involving COVID-19, we wanted to remind you that Operations Management is officially sunsetting. While our anticipated shutoff date was 3/31/2020, we have determined it may be necessary to allow a few more weeks of active use. We will provide updates with the official cutoff as we have them.

As you should already be aware, M3's reporting tool, Operations Management, is sunsetting. Once an updated sunset date has been established, on that date your data will no longer populate to Operations Management and you will cease receiving any scheduled reports you had created.

It is being replaced by our new business intelligence tool, Insight. You can look forward to our brand-new platform adding value through increased customer driven functionality to include graphs, charts, tables and nearly unlimited custom dashboard building options.

If you would like more information regarding Insight, please submit a case at <https://help.m3as.com> asking for more details.
